The Greatest News

Robin Roberts underwent her dangerous bone marrow transplant surgery two weeks ago.

Not an exaggeration to call this period....waiting for the new cells to hopefully be accepted and start working in Robin's body.....life or death.

The marker whereby the doctors can declare good or not-to-good status is white blood cell count.

As of yesterday, Robin's white count started to climb. Joy and celebration are finally the mood around the Roberts home.

We will see that RR beaming smile among us very soon, I have high hopes.
