Jellyfish stings Nick the shark diver

Less than 3 hours into the swim, a shark diver was stung by a jellyfish. Nick gauged his pain at a 6 out of 10. Jellyfish expert Angel Yanagihara, Ph.D., research professor at the Department of Tropical Medicine, University of Hawaii at Manoa, who is on the swimmer's escort boat, applied a special treatment ointment to the shark diver's sting. The diver reported that the pain was "immediately alleviated and dissipated with a cooling sensation."
