It's 2:45am. Our last update around 2 hours ago had Diana back in the water continuing her swim. Since Diana stopped to receive medical treatment, and continued at the EXACT spot where she stopped, the rules say she is now going for a record staged swim rather than a non-stop swim. At this moment, Diana might be playing Neil Young in her mind, or contemplating Stephen Hawking's theories of the cosmos. So for now, no news is good news. What a day it has been. If we receive any breaking news, we'll post it here first, then Facebook and Twitter. Onward!

Great job. I am following you on FB too. I am a runner and think I'm in good shape till I try to swim. You are awesome for having the strength and drive to make this happen. Good luck from SW Florida! From Key West you should take the Key West Express right to Ft. Myers. My wife and I will take you out to dinner to refuel after that swim.

I thought of you back in May 2011 when I ran from the Caribbean to the Pacific coast in Panama. My own 53 mile, one night run was a sprint compared to what you will soon accomplish. Hang tough!

Truly an amazing inspiration for the world-regardless of success-the dream and effort is what it's all about. Without the dream-it's just another day...

Thank you
