- @nytimeslearning It's great! I am so glad that you've adapted my story and made it into an engaging activity for youth. Thank you. about 19 hours ago from HootSuite reply to NYTimesLearning
- Water temps have risen and I need your help more than ever to make this Xtreme Dream possible. Here's how you can help: http://ow.ly/5K33D about 20 hours ago from HootSuite

I always wonder what my dogs are doing while I'm away on this long sojourn. My dear friend Cynthia, who is taking care of Scout and Teddy for me, evidently cajoles them into the shower for a bubble bath every now and then. Hard to tell if they like it....or they're paralyzed with fear. Wow, I miss them. ESPN reporter here last week who says sore subject between her and her husband, that she seems to miss her dog more than him when they're apart!!!!

Just saw the piece in the New York Times and submitted an online donation to Spire. Our dog Popeye is in the lake every single day but as soon as he sees any sign of an impending bath he runs the other way. And when you do finally corral him & get him lathered up, he has an expression just like the one your dogs have in these pictures. Plus, my husband works in sports television so he travels a lot and it never fails that when he does come home, I have to wait for Popeye and him to have their reunion before I'm even noticed! Well, while you're swimming away those 103 miles you'll have a lot of time to think about all the funny stuff your dogs do and how glad they'll be to see you when you get back. We're pulling for you. Good luck!

Great pictures. "Ok. I'll put up with the bubbles for the camera, but you better have a NY strip for me..."

They'll be happy after a short 103 mile swim. God's speed.

Understandable. I feel the same way when I'm away from my pup, Homer 😊

Dear Diana –

Who wouldn't miss those characters? Unconditional love; big, brown eyes; and all the fur any lint roller can handle... what's not to love?

Seriously – good luck and best wishes for this incredible journey! Will there be a live web cast of any sort once you embark?

Jan
