On July 10th, at the age of 60, legendary open-water swimmer Diana Nyad will attempt to complete her first marathon swim in over 30 years. Nyad's triumphant return to long-distance swimming will take her 50 miles off the Florida Coast to begin a consecutive 24-hour swim through the Gulf Stream's open-water and back to the Florida shoreline, without a shark cage.

SUPPORT THE SWIM

This swim from Cuba to Florida is quite like a mountain-climbing expedition. An expert team of collaborators, from world-class navigators and shark experts to nutrition experts, advise me about situations of extreme duress.

Most of the team generously donate their time in the name of grand adventure. But there are on-the-ground expense items that simply demand cash. The Mother Ship, the escort boat, their crews, fuel, the kayaks, the Shark Shields, the airfare, the hotel rooms for a crew of some 25 people, my food, skin and gear.

At this point, I am still lacking about $200,000 to get this expedition accomplished. If you want to be part of it, I can't tell you how grateful I would be for any bit of help you could extend. Click the button below to help.
